Marker for First Methodist Church in Barnard Dedicated.

Four and a half miles from this village on the well known "north road," in the midst of Barnard's best farming section, a quiet and impressive scene was enacted yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock when about 100 people who had come in teams or automobiles stood reverently around a marker which had been erected only the day before to commemorate the erection 100 years earlier of the first Methodist house of worship on the old Barnard circuit, whose area was not very far from coinciding with the White river valley. The day, though pleasant, was cool enough so that the men were allowed to wear hats except during the prayer periods of the service, which was made memorable chiefly by the address of Rev. W. M. Newton of Providence, R. I., who explained the inscription upon a bronze plate 2 ft. by 28 inches which, inserted in the face of a noble block of Bethel white granite, constitutes the marker, whose full dimensions are: Height, 4 feet; width, 38 inches; thickness, 18 inches, standing upon a cement foundation directly in front of the middle of the North Barnard cemetery, every character easily legible by passengers in vehicles of whatever sort for years to come. The service at this location was part of a program extending over two days, the rest of which was at the church in Barnard village. Last evening's address by Rev. Dr. T. P. Frost of Bradford on "The Spirit of the Fathers" is described by those who heard it as a remarkably fine effort.

A vacancy in the fourth-class post-office at Gayville has occurred by the resignation of Miss Susan Safford, postmaster for the last year, who plans to go to Rochester to live.

An institution heavy with age fell into the discard Thursday when the Bethel-Woodstock express was carried by stage no longer, as it had been since the railroad first came to Bethel. Among those who have enjoyed government contracts during that time to carry the mail between the two points were William Billings & Son, who held office 40 years; Oscar Burke, M. A. Sawyer, P. W. Chamberlain, Roy G. Wheelock and George R. Guernsey, who took up only a few months ago his predecessor's contract for four years at $1,188 a year, for his daily except-Sunday trip, Woodstock to Bethel in the morning, Bethel to Woodstock in the afternoon. Instead of this, O. N. Barrows, rural carrier on route No. 3, delivers and receives every day a sealed package at the Barnard postoffice and John A. Moore of Barnard has been given a contract for four years at $725 a year to carry the mail from Barnard to Woodstock and return once daily except Sunday. At least temporarily and perhaps permanently, Mr. Guernsey will continue the passenger and express service between Barnard and this place, making many trips with his automobile as need requires. Formerly the canceling of the mail contract would have constituted a real hardship quite apart from the delivery of mail, as it would have involved the failure of the accompanying passenger and express business which is so great a convenience. The automobile comes to the rescue in the actual emergency and almost stops the voices of protest that certainly would have been heard loudly though in vain but for its intervention.

Dewey M. White of the medical reserve corps is now at Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., and writes to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. White, of near-summer weather in that balmy climate and of many pleasant features of soldiering thus far as he experiences it.

Samuel J. Jebb has sold his farm to J. J. Davis of Middleboro, Mass., and will move to this village. Mr. Davis, with his family, will live on the farm.

The remains of Mrs. Harlan Paige were brought from Boston to-day for interment in Barnard beside those of her husband, a native of that town, who died some years ago. Mrs. Paige was a member of the Randolph family of Montpelier.

Mrs. R. S. Washburn and her mother, Mrs. Addie Allen are visiting in Fitchburg and Leominster, Mass.

Miss Dorothy Cady is visiting Miss Mildred Shaw in Boston.

Stephane Pomolatsky has bought a farm in Barnard from R. H. Farrell of Winsted, Conn., who formerly lived on the farm.

The boys at the junior high school have raised this season: Potatoes, 254 bushels; beans, 9½ bushels; corn, 38 bushels No. 1, 15 bushels No. 2; cabbage, 12 bushels, thus doing their bit to help relieve the food situation.

The teachers from Plainfield who attended the teachers' convention at St. Albans were as follows: Miss Lucy Swift, Mrs. Rhumiah Story, Howard Hanson.

The teachers in town have been given a half day this week to visit the houses in their districts in the interests of the United States food administration. They have met with a generous response on the part of the Plainfield people.

Recently the senior class in English very much enjoyed dramatizing the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow," which they hope to present sometime in the coming year.

If any housekeeper wishes information concerning any special recipes, Miss Swift will be glad to get such information for her if possible.

A Halloween party was given by the junior class Wednesday evening, Oct. 31, when a fine time was enjoyed.

William Martin raised at his farm in Grand Isle a Hubbard squash that weighed 22½ pounds.

MIDDLESEX

Earl Densmore, Native of Brookfield, Died of Heart Trouble.

Earl Densmore passed away Tuesday afternoon after but a few weeks' illness with heart trouble. He was born in Brookfield 34 years ago, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Densmore. The deceased was a very industrious man and for the past five years had been employed by the Tenney company at the Middlesex electric plant. The esteem in which he was held by his co-workers at the plant was partly shown by a purse of money, in addition to his weekly pay, which was presented him but a short time before his death. Although Mr. Densmore was at this time very low, yet he realized it and greatly appreciated the gift, as does his family at this time of great need. Fifteen years ago he married Miss Florence Blay of Hartland, who survives him, with five children, Morris, Lottie, Shirley, Emma and Robert, also his father, who has made his home with him a great part of the time, and three brothers, William of St. Johnsbury, Clyde of California and Floyd of Barre. Funeral services were held from his late home Friday afternoon, Rev. O. L. Barnard, a former Methodist pastor, officiating. Interment was in the Lewis cemetery. The bearers were R. T. White, superintendent of the electric plant, Albert Taplin, James Ferris and Carl Weir.
